Bill Passed by House and Senate to Declassify COVID Origins Documents May Be Attempt to 'Frame' China, Experts Warn

Lawmakers and media misrepresented a bill requiring the declassification of documents related to the origins of COVID-19, according to several experts who warned that contrary to what the public was told, the legislation limits the types of documents the government must declassify — raising questions about the bill's real intent.

According to the sponsors of the COVID-19 Origin Act of 2023 — which sailed through the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives and is awaiting President Biden's signature — the bill requires the government to declassify all documents pertaining to COVID-19.

But experts interviewed by The Defender said the bill requires the declassification only of documents related to the Wuhan Institute of Virology in Wuhan, China — the epicenter of the "lab leak theory."

They suggested the limitations may be intended to reduce the culpability of U.S. and private actors in the potential leak of — or development of — COVID-19, by placing full blame on China and the Wuhan Institute of Virology.

Bill's backers made 'false claims'

Independent journalist Sam Husseini said Sen. Josh Hawley (R-Mo.), the Senate's co-sponsor of the COVID-19 Origin Act, made "claims about the bill which are false."

Hawley, on March 1, tweeted:

Josh Hawley @HawleyMO · Follow

Tonight the Senate UNANIMOUSLY passed my bill to declassify all the intelligence the government has on #covid origins. Let the people see the truth!

Speaking to Fox News March 2, Hawley made similar claims, saying, "My bill … will declassify all of the information the federal government has on COVID origins."

Hawley later followed up his statements with a letter addressed to Chinese President Xi Jinping, informing him of the bill's passage. This prompted a response from the Chinese government, according to The Gateway Pundit.

China has been so worked up about this COVID origins bill, Communist officials wrote to my office earlier this week and demanded I drop it. I thought I'd update President Xi on today's passage 👇

Dear President Xi,

Today the U.S. House of Representatives followed the Senate in unanimously adopting my bill to declassify U.S. government intelligence on the origins of the COVID virus. I know you are keenly interested in this bill—your own Communist officials have written to my office demanding we renounce it, in their usual lecturing, idiotic style.

But the bill will soon be law—unless you can convince President Biden to veto it. Time is up. Come clean about your role in spreading COVID to the world.

Very sincerely yours,

Another of the bill's Senate co-sponsors, Sen. Mike Braun (R-Ind.), said in a statement:

> "The American people deserve transparency, free from censorship or spin. It's time to declassify everything we know about COVID's origins and the Wuhan Institute of Virology, now."

Braun also tweeted:

The Senate just unanimously passed @HawleyMO's & my bill to declassify every piece of information about the COVID lab leak.

The House needs to pass this bill to let the American people see the facts!

President Biden can't ignore this: time to let Americans decide for ourselves.

Rep. Mike Turner (R-Ohio), who chairs the House Intelligence Committee, told the House:

> "The American public deserves answers to every aspect of COVID-19 pandemic including how this virus was created, and specifically whether it was a natural occurrence or was the result of a lab related event."

Statements like these led media outlets, including The Defender, to report that if passed, the will would trigger the release of all documents — not just those related to the Wuhan Institute of Virology.

Bill 'dubiously named'

On his blog, Husseini said the COVID-19 Origin Act is "dubiously named" and instructs Director of National Intelligence Avril Haines only to:

> "Declassify any and all information relating to potential links between the Wuhan Institute of Virology and the origin of the Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19), including (A) activities performed by the Wuhan Institute of Virology with or on behalf of the People's Liberation Army [of China]."

"This means that information not related to the Wuhan Institute of Virology is not being requested and would almost certainly therefore remain classified," Husseini wrote.

The bill also states:

> "There is reason to believe the COVID-19 pandemic may have originated at the Wuhan Institute of Virology …
> "… the Director of National Intelligence should declassify and make available to the public as much information as possible about the origin of COVID-19 so the United States and like-minded countries can —
>
> "(A) identify the origin of COVID-19 as expeditiously as possible, and
> "(B) use that information to take all appropriate measures to prevent a similar pandemic from occurring again."

The bill requires Haines to turn over the declassified evidence "no later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act" and to submit to Congress an unclassified report containing all the documents requested in the bill, with "only such redactions as the Director determines necessary to protect sources and methods."

Husseini noted that parts of the bill are unusually specific, focusing "on one strain of alleged evidence" by calling for Haines to turn over classified documents pertaining to "researchers at the Wuhan Institute of Virology who fell ill in autumn 2019."

"Now, that could be very important," Husseini wrote. "But why is this legislation limiting disclosures?"

A 'classic Nixonian limited hangout'?

Husseini suggested some members of Congress may not have been fully aware that the bill they were voting for does not appear to, in fact, fully declassify all documents related to the origins of COVID-19.

"I have no idea if members of Congress have actually read the legislation and realize how limited it is," wrote Husseini, who, in another post, called Hawley's public rhetoric regarding the bill "false and misleading."

Husseini told The Defender the bill may be acting as a "limited hangout" with the purpose of acknowledging the "lab leak theory" on the one hand, but via legislation that "makes us accept half of the truth."

Francis Boyle, J.D., Ph.D., professor of international law at the University of Illinois, told The Defender, "I'm afraid this [bill] is going to be a classic Nixonian limited hangout" that "does not call for the declassification of all those sources [that] should be declassified and/or released."

Boyle said any information that is declassified "is going to be helpful," but that the bill's provision allowing redactions raises concern.

"Who knows what Avril Haines is going to knock out of this report," he said.

Husseini noted that the bill also makes no provisions for providing information that several groups, including U.S. Right to Know and some media organizations, have requested — but not yet received — via Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) submissions. Husseini said this information "is not classified but is being withheld."

Husseini cited Gary Ruskin, executive director and co-founder of U.S. Right to Know, who said:

> "Much of the federal government's information related to the origins of Covid-19 is not classified, or likely not classified. We just haven't been able to access much of it yet via FOIA/FOIA litigation.
>
> "The NIH's [National Institutes of Health] conduct in stonewalling FOIAs is especially outrageous. It's time for the Biden administration to tell NIH to comply with the FOIA."

At a March 9 U.S. Department of State press conference, Ned Price, the agency's spokesperson, appeared to stonewall Husseini when he asked why the government hasn't responded to U.S. Right to Know's FOIA requests related to government funding of bioweapons agents' discovery research, including the funding of such research in China.

"We can respond in writing on a question that specific," Price replied. When further pressed by Husseini, Price said, "I would ask that you be respectful of your colleagues."

An attempt to blame the virus exclusively on China?

There has been a flurry of news reports in recent weeks originating from various branches of the U.S. government indicating broader acceptance of the "lab leak theory."

The U.S. Department of Energy said it now believes COVID-19 most likely emerged from the Wuhan lab — a position subsequently adopted publicly by FBI Director Christopher Wray.

On March 8, the House Select Subcommittee on the Coronavirus Pandemic heard the testimony of experts who also accepted the "lab leak theory."

"All this — the recent hearings, the Hawley legislation, the WSJ piece — seem part of a coordinated effort on the part of the 'intelligence community' to own the pandemic story and use it for their purposes," Husseini wrote.

Boyle shared similar concerns with The Defender:

> "I am concerned that this [bill] is only going to get a part of the truth. Certainly not the full truth of what really happened here with COVID-19, which we need to get at.
>
> "My concern is that all that's going to get out of this report … will implicate the Wuhan BSL4 [biosafety level 4 lab] in COVID-19. Well, that's fine with me. But what about the American involvement here?
>
> "And this was funded by Tony Fauci and Francis Collins at NIAID [National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases] and NIH. Those should be in this legislation too, if we really wanted to get to the bottom of what happened here."

Boyle and Husseini told The Defender there are numerous government and private entities whose classified documents should be declassified.

Boyle said these include the University of North Carolina, the National Center for Toxicological Research, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute at Harvard Medical School, the U.S. Agency for International Development, EcoHealth Alliance and the Integrated Research Facility at Fort Detrick.

Husseini noted that state governments and private institutions also are likely to possess important information that the COVID-19 Origin Act does not cover. These include Scripps Research, Tulane University and the Wellcome Trust."

The Wellcome Trust is headed by Jeremy Farrar, now chief scientist for the World Health Organization. "Farrar played a central role in disseminating the propaganda line that COVID could not have lab origins in early 2020," Husseini said.

U.S. Right to Know sued the University of North Carolina, which is publicly owned, after it failed to respond to the watchdog group's FOIA requests.

Husseini said the COVID-19 Origin Act "doesn't even instruct the DNI [Director of National Intelligence] to declassify what it knows about other Chinese government institutions like the Chinese CDC [Centers for Disease Control and Prevention]."

Husseini told The Defender:

> "Since [Fauci] retired, the system has seemingly skillfully tried to put the deranged stance of the last three years into the rearview mirror hoping people will forget the massive propaganda."

Boyle told The Defender that "from this legislation, it does appear they're trying to pin it all on China."

Husseini, noting that "China may well have major culpability," said this is not the same as full or exclusive culpability, which is what the U.S. government may now be attempting to establish.

Husseini wrote that "a general anti-China agenda, has taken primacy and is part of a dynamic which 'ultimately lets' U.S. institutions and 'U.S. biowarfare off the hook.'"

He told The Defender:

> "There are two pillars of the U.S. establishment here — one wants to polarize at some level with China and the other wants to ensure the U.S. government continues its discovery of bioweapons agents.
>
> "For the establishment to be maintained, both those strains need to be maintained."

According to Husseini, this may explain why the bill passed both houses with seemingly little debate. It passed the Senate with "unanimous consent," and subsequently passed the House in a unanimous vote.

Husseini noted that Rep. Thomas Massie (R-Ky.), a member of the House Rules Committee, even put forth a rule "to ensure passage of Hawley's bill."

Husseini said Biden, who hasn't yet said if he will sign the bill, has a few options he may be considering, telling The Defender:

> "I see no sign of actual opposition from the Biden administration and I suspect this is all being done in coordination with the director of National Intelligence, as were the reports in the Wall Street Journal that drove this narrative.
> "It's possible Biden wants to appear reluctant on this and I suppose Biden could veto it and get an override so he could pose as being conciliatory to the Chinese or the like."

Husseini said that "with the collapse of the completely fictional Daszak narrative in the late Spring and Summer of 2021 … a backup narrative has been put forward, especially through the Wall Street Journal," whose report on the Department of Energy pivoting toward the "lab leak theory" was co-written by Michael Gordon, "who with Judy Miller perpetrated the Iraq weapons of mass destruction fraud on the U.S. public."

He also blamed wide swaths of the independent media, particularly left-leaning outlets, for going along with establishment efforts to discredit the theory that COVID-19 emerged from the Wuhan Institute of Virology.

"Much of 'the Left' has basically done everything to kill lab origin — and effectively made it a right-wing issue," Husseini said.

According to Husseini, those who long promoted the Chinese response to COVID-19 and who now are supporting the push to frame China, are pushing for a world "that combines the worst aspects of the U.S. — corrupt corporate capitalism — with the worst aspects of Chinese society: explicit authoritarianism."

"The pandemic, it can hardly be ignored, helped isolate people from one another, helped restrict borders, was an excuse for massive civil liberties restrictions — all things useful to the World Economic Forum's 'Great Reset' agenda," said Husseini. "This is another reason that intentional release should be seriously examined."

Lab leak or lab origin?

Husseini said he prefers the term "lab origin theory" over "lab leak theory."

"I see no good reason to make assumptions," Husseini said. "'Leak' assumes a mistake. It could have been a mistake, but why presume it?"

Boyle adopted a similar view, although he noted that the language of the COVID-19 Origin Act does not mention either term.

"It does not refer to a lab leak," he said. "It doesn't say 'leak' at all. It says 'originated at the Wuhan Institute of Virology.' Obviously, there could be different interpretations of why it originated there. I still believe it was a leak, but this does leave open why it might have originated there."

Boyle reiterated his longstanding belief that "COVID-19 is an offensive biological warfare weapon with gain-of-function properties" and called for the halting of gain-of-function research.

According to Boyle, who drafted the Biological Weapons Anti-Terrorism Act of 1989, Congress' reluctance to declassify documents that may implicate U.S. government entities in the origins of COVID-19 is reflective of the massive amounts of federal money spent on biological weapons research.

"They're not doing that because the U.S. government agencies and scientists involved in the development of COVID-19 [have received] massive sums of money," Boyle said. "We've been devoted to developing offensive biological warfare programs since after Sept. 11, 2001 … I've been speaking out about this publicly for years."

Husseini told The Defender:

> "Biowarfare is a deniable weapon, which makes disclosure of documents key. Another reason why the Hawley bill limiting disclosure may well signal a massive coverup in plain sight."

In a pair of tweets Sunday, British Member of Parliament Andrew Bridgen said he received information from U.S. government sources indicating that the U.S. Department of Defense and the Fort Detrick research facility "were responsible for both the virus and the vaccines" and that "criminal proceedings" may follow.

He tweeted:

Andrew Bridgen @ABridgen · Follow

I can confirm that during my visit to Washington DC last Christmas/ New Year I was informed that the US DoD were responsible for both the virus and the vaccines. Fort Detrick was named. Also a facility in Canada. (1/2)

Bridgen did not clarify which sources provided him with this information or who might face such criminal proceedings.At the March 8 Select Subcommittee on the Coronavirus Pandemic hearing, former director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Dr. Robert Redfield said COVID-19 was "engineered" and blamed gain-of-function research for "the greatest pandemic our world has seen."

However, Redfield stopped short of explicitly calling for a full ban on such activities, calling instead for a moratorium.

Boyle told The Defender "all this gain-of-function so-called 'research' has to be terminated immediately with legislation by Congress … The only way to protect ourselves is to terminate it immediately. No moratorium."

"There was a moratorium" during the Barack Obama presidency, said Boyle, "and Fauci undermined the moratorium by outsourcing the work through the EcoHealth Alliance to the Wuhan BSL4 [laboratory]. So, a moratorium is worthless. We have to terminate all gain-of-function research everywhere. It has to be prohibited, to be made criminal."

The Defender reached out to the offices of Hawley and Braun, Turner and Bridgen for comment, but did not receive a response as of press time.

Of course evidence points to Wuhan's involvement but even more evidence points to U.S. gain of function research, especially at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill under the supervision of Ralph Baric; Congress already has information about this but the implications and political cost would be too great to be completely transparent and admit responsibility; so China becomes the convenient scapegoat and cover to avoid revealing the real culprits which would include nefarious actors from pharma, government and any number of complicit agencies. Boyle is absolutely right that so many laws were broken that the U.S. would find it all but impossible to fully own up and come clean at this stage of the game.

My tinfoil is far more impressive than yours. What if "proving" exactly how the "accident" at the lab occurred, amounted to limited hangout, concealing that the Plandemic was orchestrated on both sides of the Pacific?

This is the ole bait and switch routine. Point is to make it sound like passing the bill was a good thing for the public, when in reality it only helps the government to be more secretive and protect bad actors. At the same time it makes all the politicians who vote in favor of this bill look like upstanding people when in reality they are traitors to the American people.

Congress is worthless...this blame China, while ignoring the fact the Frankenstein experiments in at the US labs and other US biolabs worldwide created the virus and the depopulation weapon jabs as the solution. This is nothing more than political theater. There won't be any justice in this injustice system who protects the fat cats.

You will never hear about the virus weaponization projects that occurred in the U.S. Ft Detrick, Md (Agent Orange developer) was sharing data and test samples with Wuhan until such was halted. Fauci obtained funding (millions over the years) from his branch of NIH for continuing the "gain of function" in Wuhan. All the American public will be informed of is that Wuhan Lab, China had an unfortunate escape of the virus. Ukraine and other labs were also being surreptitiously being funded for similar research.

UNC, Chapel Hill - Ralph Baric and Peter Daszak. Someone else mentioned Ft. Detrick. Yup; one big happy family. Of course, the real guidance is all coming from the DOD/DARPA. What's that other entity...oh yeah, BARDA! I hear, they even have a microchip ready and waiting. Have people not noticed the military terminology throughout this psyops? Oh; and look at this page...there's that term "Countermeasures" again! Nothing to see here people - move along.

Let's get down to the real problems we are currently facing. We are all under an ongoing deadly assault. I suspect that if 5G and 6G mega towers and similar structures installed on top of commercial buildings and stadiums were disabled the NWO's plans for mass genocide (along with the injections), transhumanism and enslavement of the masses would largely collapse. The concern is these structures' cameras and satellites and perhaps are armed with some form of direct energy weaponry. Therefore, ordinary ground based sabotage or vandalism would be futile. Plus, there are so many towers worldwide now. It doesn't seem as if we have any military and intelligence forces willing or capable of defending and protecting us, or they would not have been erected in the first place. I'm completely baffled as to how so many have gone along with these warped plans to destroy, billions probably, of their fellow human beings: infants, children and adults alike. Of course, it's not the first time in human history seemingly intelligent and compassionate people either ignored, enabled or participated in the destruction of countless numbers of their fellow human beings. And they survived only to be

The Wuhan lab may at best be the proximal (or intermediate) source of the coronavirus. The true origins of the virus go back to the people and the institutions that funded and invented the (gain-of-function) technology used to create the virus in the lab. The roots of this technology can be traced back to US DoD. Which also suggests that the purpose of the so-called gain-of-function was to create a bioweapon, and not a treatment for some human disease.

Dr Francis Boyle is the author of the Biological Weapons Act and has written and says Gain of Function must b outlawed everywhere.He has written an analysis that Covid19 is a bioweapon and states there was a moratorium of GOF during Obama administration &Fauci bypassed this by funding GOF at Wuhan Institute.
The House&Senate must Declassify All documents in the U.S.of origins 9f COVID19 must be declassified otherwise the Hawley bill could b a coverup to just blame China.
Prime Minister Andrew Bridgeon stated during his trip to DC last yr he was informed U.S.DoD was responsible for the virus&the vaccines&Fort Detrick
(This should in no way obscure Fauci's role in the direct coverup of his funding GOF at WIV&all his medical fraud...and COVID Lies that contributed to tge Mass Murder of millions of Americans.

According to Nevradakis, Andrew Bridgen says the DoD is partly responsible. That would have been Trump's Secretary of Defense, Mark Esper. You have indict and convict all of them at the ideation level of the Gates, the planning level of those retired from the GNL, and their foot soldier virologist buddies at the creation of the chimeric coronavirus level, as well as the U.S. virologists who have participated in this massive coverup. Or, the plandemics will occur time and time again. It is too bad that many of the main persons who continued to perpetrate this fraud upon the whole world the last three years, are too old to do prison time, and will die of old age outside of prison walls enjoying their pensions. Pensions which should be taken from them, and given to those who lost loved ones during this plandemic, a plandemic to test the world's readiness for a true pandemic, where they scientifically went wrong.

Mark Esper... He's the then-Secretary of Defense who "couldn't recall" the November 2019 (before Chinese doctors discovered the 1st COVID-19 cases) intelligence report warning of "potentially cataclysmic health crisis originating in Eastern Asia"...

Another way to legitimize covid rather than tell the world about the covid vaccine development grants given to pharma in 2016. It was right on moderna's website. How many people saw it right on modernas website? It was there!! If they spend money developing 'vaccines' surely they want a return on their investment- a world full of test subjects. Why can't people see this? No isolated virus.

I know exactly why those neocons are so excited about the "lab leak" and why we now, all of sudden, are allowed to talk about it. I don't deny both US and Chine have been carrying out so called Gain of function research. But, when you say "COVID-19 origin", what virus are you talking about? It's never been isolated, has it? Moreover, when you say "pandemic", what pandemic? I didn't see any. It wasn't until 2021 that people actually started to get sick or die. And I now know more or less what happened to those who mysteriously died in 2020. Hoaxes are layered on top of hoaxes. We must try to see the whole picture from a distance.

I'm more interested in the CDC and NIH declassification. We may never get the real truth since it is looking like this is a DOD operation.

I doubt they want to frame China. Biden owes China and they own him. He has given away so much of the U.S. to China and they gladly accepted and paid him millions.

Sigh. There was no new deadly disease.
It was medical murder.

...the epicenter of the "lab leak theory."
Yes, it is just unconfirmed theory and everything will be done to tarnish China (not Russia's enemy) image.
There was no pandemic and super GoF virus. It is all BS in order to introduce lethal experimental jabs globally by DOD and BARDA..so called 'preventive measure'

According to Boyle, who drafted the Biological Weapons Anti-Terrorism Act of 1989, Congress' reluctance to declassify documents that may implicate U.S. government entities in the origins of COVID-19 is reflective of the massive amounts of federal money spent on biological weapons research.

"They're not doing that because the U.S. government agencies and scientists involved in the development of COVID-19 [have received] massive sums of money," Boyle said. "We've been devoted to developing offensive biological warfare programs since after Sept. 11, 2001 … I've been speaking out about this publicly for years."

Many Americans were disappointed at the non-response, inaction or silence inside the United States Congress to widespread rumors and speculations regarding the months-long shutdown of Fort Detrick in the summer of 2019 - before the World Health Organization declared the COVID-19 global pandemic.

Many Americans were also disappointed by the similar inaction and/or silence inside the United States Congress with regard to the very short-lived/quickly buried insider trading

I am literally having neck pain and arm pain but I think it's from those tall things that carry cell signals. Sadly I can see one right from my window. It's been there for 20 years but only recently do I feel like utter hell despite the fact I haven't been working due to this wonderful economy. Or could it be from those 'clouds' in the sky above my head that appear like clockwork everyday from specific flights? Or could it be whenever I am around a jabbed person, me or hubby get sick. One wonders....

Dr. David Martin has brilliantly put together all the information necessary. No "Congressional Investigation" needed. STOP WASTING our money & time.

Of course it has to Chyna. Fort Detrick was shut down only because of of maintenance and the respiratory illness occurring nearby during summer was purely because of vaping... that's the honest truth...case closed....no need any further investigation

I stated a few months ago that H5N1 could be the next Plandemic. They're killing all the chickens and injecting what's left, along with pigs and cows with mRNA crap; so the only thing left to eat will be "lab grown"! What do you think? The world has definitely gone totally insane! Hey...could we get all the skunks to wear masks?

Why did, all or almost all countries, mandate masks? When I was a boy, maybe 55 yr ago, I saw a magazine picture of people in China wearing masks to protect against flu. I wondered why don't we do it? Then I found out. They don't work. In fact we now know constant use is actually dangerous.
Why did almost all countries mandate lockdowns? This was catastrophic economically and healthwise. Any fool could figure out this was insane.
Why was the PCR test used at cycles guaranteed to give false positives. A test that the inventor said was not fit for the purpose.
Why was there social distancing required. When asked how 6ft. was arrived at the former CDC director Redfield said it was a guess. Let me understand, a mandate for businesses and other gatherings was instituted on a guess.
Mind you, this insanity was worldwide. Lockstep, as in Event 201. I won't even go into vaccines.
I can only come to one conclusion there is some supranational world power that all nations fear, and can compel obedience. Even BRICS won't effect this power. BRICS may even be part of this power's plan.

So the US takes the virus to China for gain of function, funded by Fauci. So Fauci owns the final extra-virulent virus. He bought it. This virus can then be released anywhere. So it is plausible the US took it back to China and released it there, and then came up with this silly bat food market story. Now they are going to blame it on China to perhaps further stoke the conflict.

Anything that comes from the government, if it is not a lie, at least serves their malign purpose.

Maybe I haven't had enough coffee yet but I'm confused with this story. I was trying to see if there was an angle with this author because I know he is quite detailed in his usual research.

It doesn't change my mind at all. It was a bioweapon from the beginning to thwart an election & begin depopulation. They were hoping enough would be killed in Trump's term to blame him & gain the following election. Well, they succeeded. How else do you explain the mock convention/scenario (forget what it was called) where the WHO & fake 'actors' mocked about a future plandemic?? This was in either 2017 or 2018. Hmmmm, so coincidental. But it's taken THIS long to find 'answers'???!!! Please.

They must really think we are stupid.
